“ I will never forget the day that I first met Uncle Pete. Eric only said “Just so you know, my Uncle can be a little over the top sometimes.” As we walked in, you could hear his booming laugh from the other room. Uncle Pete then greeted me with a smile, a hug and a beer, immediately welcoming me into the family, assuring me that I can be comfortable around him and then cracked a joke about meeting new families.

Pete was an amazing man. Sure, he was straightforward and blunt with his opinions, but I personally found it entertaining. That man always found a way to put a positive spin for everything. He was quick to help, teach, answer questions and find the best deals when it came to any sort of home projects.

Pete had welcomed me into the family with open arms and a beer to toast the occasion. He had a carefree sort of spirit & despite everything that he went through, that man still found the humor in any situation, smile and crack a joke. With him gone now, who will critique Eric’s poor spackling skills with me or joke about the state of a project, etc.? Uncle Pete will certainly be missed. The world will be just a little less fun without you...

“ Early Saturday morning, we lost one of the goofiest people I have known. My Uncle Peter Madic passed away in the early morning hours.

About 10 years ago, my department was shutdown and my entire team was let go. While searching for a new job, i started working with Pete. Many days started with our customary “Ahoy!”, a greeting i can’t remember starting but continued right up to the end. Most of the jobs I assisted with I had no idea how to do starting out. He would laugh, and give me his best Kung Fu Masters “Ahhh- Grasshopper”, and proceed to show me the ropes. I learned quite a bit about house projects from him, something I am truly grateful for. Still the “grasshopper”, him and my Dad would also come over for the occasional “project emergency” to lend a hand and give me pointers. I can think of at least a few times the three of us would be at my townhouse shaking our heads at the newest house catastrophe.

My Grandfather “Opa” passed away when I was pretty young. He was very well known as being a handyman, and it was easy to see Uncle Pete carried on that tradition. I can only hope to do the same.

I don’t think I need to explain his humor to anyone that had met him for more than a few minutes. Always the joker, he would make wise cracks at every opportunity. It was pretty much a given when he was together with his sisters the same scene would always play out. He would make a joke (often vulgar, because hey- why not), and either my mom or one of my aunts would smack his arm and tell him “Peter! Knock it off!”. Naturally, he would then chuckle and proceed to “not knock it off”. Often, this would also have me on the sidelines cracking up at the whole exchange.

Pete Madic was a one of a kind character. His sense of humor always brought smiles and laughs, and I will never for his tutorage and help. He will be missed by all of those who got to know him. I know I will greatly miss him and the relationship we formed, especially over the last 10 years.

“ Pete - I am having a hard time wrapping my head around the fact that you are gone. We had many crazy and good times over the years. My home is full of reminders of you from the many projects you helped and guided me through. Also, the many meals we prepared on the grill, the "Pete" sized smoker or the summertime crab feasts. Your suffering is over Rest In Peace Brother. You will be missed.
