“ My mother was one of the most loving, faithful, giving, kind, God loving women to ever grace the Earth. She was a great wife and best mother a child could ask for. Growing up as children of hers' she always did her best to make sure we were happy and had everything out hearts desired...she never failed to let us know how much she loved each and every one of us. She loved the autumn season, the changing of the leaves she really cherished...she also loved Christmas and collected Department 56 houses and various snow globes. Mommy was a great cook and made the best chocolate chip cookies and peanut butter fudge for the Holidays. Though she spent the last two decades sick and her body having went through much with her various battles with cancer, she never failed to put her family before herself and express her love. She also had great faith and trust in the Lord which I believe, that coupled with her love of her family is what kept her pushing through the last years of her young life. There are many more things that could be shared about this remarkable woman, but this post probably doesn't have room for it. I hope everyone cherishes there mother's as they all deserve to be cherished, we are only given one in this life.

“ My whole life is one huge memory of Mom. Her family was literally her whole world and she'd have done anything for any of us. We'd turn the lights off in the living room and watch spooky shows or Dark Shadows. Her teaching me how to bake or make roses with icing. She made all my birthday cakes. All the times we'd sit around the table and laugh at stupid stuff until everyone was in tears. My favorite times were on Thanksgiving after everything was cleaned up and we'd watch The Waltons Homecoming together. Then on Christmas morning ,when everyone was still asleep, she'd sneak in my room and we'd watch A Christmas Carol together. She will always be my best friend no matter. I love you Mom with everything in me and that'll never change.
