Leroy Barnett was born on February 8, 1955, to the late William Thomas Barnett, Sr. and Pearl Mae Barnett, in Norfolk, Va. Leroy was the seventh of eight children.

Leroy was always a very funny, energetic and spirited boy. He loved playing outside with his siblings in Brooklyn, New York. Leroy attended Madison High School, in Brooklyn, New York. After his time in the army he held several jobs that involved caring for or protecting people. He served as a Captain of security at a New York company, body guard to several famous people, and worked for the Developmentally Disabled company in Delaware.

Leroy was a devoted Jehovah Witness at the Kingdom Hall where he enjoyed witnessing to people about Jehovah God and Jesus Christ. Leroy loved his wife Patricia dearly and cherished the life they created with their two daughters and nine grandchildren. To know him was to love him. Leroy could not enter a room without getting the attention and hearts of all occupants. He had an amazing personality and could make you laugh uncontrollably. Leroy loved fashion and would have the grandchildren call him “Silky Slim” and “Dapper Dan” because he was so cool.

He was an avid sports fan and shared his knowledge of the sport through coaching others and his grandchildren. Leroy was a lover of music who enjoyed dancing with his wife and family. Leroy will always be remembered for being a strong, and dedicated man who served Jehovah God and covered his family.
